

PRESIDENTS FEATURED

by Bonnie Hunter

Who is Who?

This reporter's first interview with twins revealed the following information. First of all, their names are Scott and Doug Roberts. The two enjoy playing football, basketball, and tennis with each other. They also like to play musical instruments together. When asked if they intended to switch classes sometime next year, Doug replied, "I doubt it; the high school is very strict, and we don't look enough alike." Also, as you probably know, they are both in a group called the "Sunset Three." Doug plays the guitar and Scott, the banjo. Scott said, "I think we might break up the group for about a year until our voices get through changing."

Doug then stated that he enjoys playing the guitar and studying by himself. His extra-curricular activities are choir, French Club, and president of Student Council. His duties as Student Council president are: keeping order at the meetings, proposing new ideas, and intelligently discussing the ideas on hand.

Just as Doug enjoys playing the guitar and studying by himself, Scott enjoys playing sports by himself. His extra-curricular activities are: art helper, hall monitor, bowling, and president of choir. His duties as president of choir include sending thank-you notes to schools to which our choir has been. He also sends get-well cards to people in choir who have been sick for a long period of time. Scott also added that he takes choir because it's fun and he enjoys singing.

Incidentally, if you've been wondering who the bouncing baby boys are in the above picture, they're the Roberts boys. However, to find out who is Doug and who is Scott, you will have to ask them yourself.

Doug and Scott relax at home.
