

What Attracts The Opposite Sex

No one can say for sure why one boy appeals to one girl and repulses her best friend. It might be his long hair, maybe his height, but it's probably something undefinable and intangible.

Always adventuring into challenging water, the Arlingtonian went to the people to find out what that certain something is. A survey was conducted throughout the school and the results are startling, if not somewhat terrifying. Read on, boys and girls, to see what the opposite sex finds appealing.

If you drink or smoke to impress your friends, you may do just that, but chances are you won't impress your date. Forty-eight percent of the girls thought that this made a boy unattractive and thirty-five percent of the boys objected.

If doesn't pay to be vulgar either. Eighty-two percent of the girls found this objectionable and so did thirty-four percent of the boys.

If boys really want to impress their date they should be shy and have a quick wit. Girls should be shy, very popular, possessive, and jealous.

In case you wonder what first attracted your boy friend, sixty percent of the boys said they noticed the face first, while forty percent noticed the figure.

Girls noticed a boy's face first too, but forty percent noticed the personality. Only eleven percent of the boys said that the personality was a factor.

The thing that the girls thought was very important was good grooming. Sixty percent of them stressed this characteristic. When boys were asked about good grooming fifty-four percent said "no answer." Twenty-nine percent agreed that it was very important.

However, if you really want to make a big hit, be considerate and respectful. Ninety-eight percent said this is what they prefer.
